Skadden

Skadden's Trump Executive Actions Advisory Group is uniquely positioned to help clients navigate the rapidly evolving regulatory landscape. Spanning more than 20 practices, our team of seasoned professionals offers unparalleled guidance in the growing number of areas affected by these developments.

We advise on:

Sector-specific issues: Our extensive experience spans a wide range of industries directly impacted by recent executive actions, such as energy, financial services, life sciences and health care, manufacturing, retail and technology (including artificial intelligence and digital assets). We provide tailored advice to help clients understand and adapt to the specific regulatory and policy changes affecting their sectors.

Regulatory compliance: Skadden understands the complexities that arise from shifting regulatory landscapes and excels in designing compliance programs that align with the latest regulatory developments and each client's unique business requirements and objectives.

The strength of Skadden's regulatory practices — across such areas as antitrust, cybersecurity and privacy, energy, financial regulation, international trade, labor and employment, national security, tax and numerous others — helps ensure that clients remain in compliance while minimizing disruptions to their operations.

Transactions: Skadden's vast experience advising on the full spectrum of corporate transactional matters — including domestic and cross-border mergers and acquisitions, capital markets, energy and infrastructure projects, and corporate restructurings — enables clients to achieve their business goals. Our team helps companies identify, capitalize on and navigate opportunities for strategic transactions presented by complex shifts in regulation and policy.

Litigation/controversy matters: We are internationally recognized for successfully guiding clients through internal and government investigations, high-stakes litigation, arbitration and other complex disputes. Our strategic approach not only addresses litigation but also seeks to preempt it whenever possible. We are equipped to handle a wide range of matters that may arise from executive directives and government regulations, including government enforcement actions, regulatory challenges and commercial litigation.
