Bradley Klein has broad experience representing corporations, financial institutions and individuals in complex litigation matters, including actions brought under U.S. federal securities laws, the False Claims Act (FCA), the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act (RICO) and the Alien Tort Statute (ATS), as well as other claims based on federal and state statutory and common law. Mr. Klein also has extensive experience representing clients in Asia and the U.S. in internal investigations, regulatory enforcement actions and compliance matters involving the U.S. Foreign Corrupt Practices Act (FCPA) and other aspects of U.S. law. He has represented companies and their boards in active investigations by federal regulators, internal company investigations, and reviews of company compliance policies and internal controls.

Mr. Klein also has broad experience conducting due diligence reviews and advising on regulatory and compliance aspects of major transactions, including acquisitions, investments and joint ventures. He has represented clients and conducted investigations in a variety of industries, including manufacturing, pharmaceuticals, health care, medical devices, automotive, technology, telecommunications and financial services, among others.

Mr. Klein speaks fluent Mandarin Chinese and has particular experience in matters involving East Asia. Prior to entering law school, he studied in Beijing on a Fulbright Scholarship.

Mr. Klein's representations include:

- companies and individuals in complex U.S. federal litigations arising under the False Claims Act, RICO and the Alien Tort Statute
- companies and individuals in U.S. securities class actions
- companies in various industries in FCPA enforcement actions and internal investigations
- Asia and U.S.-based companies in anti-corruption and regulatory due diligence for major transactions, and in the negotiation of associated contract provisions
