Rebecca Murday represents global clients in U.S. and multinational enforcement actions and advises on a broad spectrum of cross-border regulatory issues.

Ms. Murday represents corporations and individuals in U.S. and cross-jurisdictional regulatory investigations and enforcement matters, including those brought by the U.S. Department of Justice (DOJ), U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC), Federal Reserve Board, state attorneys general, district attorneys and international regulators. She has conducted investigations globally — including in Europe, the Middle East and Asia — that often involve allegations of corruption, money laundering, accounting irregularities, anticompetitive behavior and economic sanctions violations.

In addition, Ms. Murday advises multinational clients on compliance with regulatory frameworks in heavily regulated industries, including tech, health care, energy and finance. She regularly counsels clients on developing and enhancing corporate compliance programs to meet evolving regulatory expectations and effectively prevent and detect violations of laws. She also assists clients in the context of corporate transactions, including pre-acquisition due diligence and post-acquisition integration.

Prior to moving to Skadden's London office in 2019, Ms. Murday practiced in the firm's Washington, D.C. office, where she represented clients in high-stakes civil litigation, as well as in connection with DOJ, SEC and Consumer Financial Protection Bureau investigations.
